World renowned musician is new artist-in-residence at CCU

By Mona Prufer
for The Chanticleer

Virtuoso bass player Steve Bailey has joined the faculty of Coastal Carolina University as an Artist-in-Residence in the Edwards College of Humanities and Fine Arts for the spring semester.

He will be teaching two courses: Music: A Career Choice and Contemporary Improvisation and will be accepting a limited number of private students. He will also assemble and direct a faculty ensemble that will perform in the community and which could be a useful recruiting tool for music students, said Philip Powell, associate professor and chair of Coastal's Department of Music.

Bailey, who now lives in Myrtle Beach after more than 20 years in New York and Los Angeles, first attended the University of North Texas on an applied bass scholarship and then earned a bachelor's degree in studio music and jazz from the University of Miami. He grew up in Myrtle Beach and started playing bass when he was 12; he got his first big break when he joined jazzman Dizzy Gillespie's band in 1983.

A partial list of his extensive credits include recording and/or touring with artists such as Paquito D'Rivera, James Moody, Lew Tabackin, Dave Leibman, Claudio Roditti, the Rippingtons, David Benoit, Kilauea, Jethro Tull, Jon Anderson, Willie Nelson, Ray Price, Billy Joe Shaver, Larry Carlton, Emily Remler, Kitaro, Mel Torme and Johnny Witherspoon.

He was twice recognized as runner-up Bass Player of the Year by Bass Player Magazine and has released two solo CDs. Bailey was a faculty member at the Bass Institute of Technology for more than 10 years and is on the Advisory Board and a columnist for Bass Player Magazine. He has been featured in music magazines and journals worldwide and is co-founder, with Victor Wooten, of Bass Extremes, a cutting edge two-bass group on the Tone Center label. He is the author of numerous books and videos on bass performance, endorses Ampeg Amplifiers, BassLines p-ups, and D'addario Strings, and is in constant demand worldwide as a clinician and performer.

Danger lies in the reeds of the Wall Pond

By Anne-Marie D'Onofrio
editor-in-chief

Beware if you walk near the Wall Pond. Lately, events of an all too unpleasant nature have been occurring in this area, and more specifically, near the science building. The events center around a gruesomely large and violent crocogator, one that still is unable to be caught.

In recent years, the crocogator has become more aggressive, making more attacks on innocent passersby who are simply trying to make their way to class. Unfortunately for them, it was feeding time for the nasty 'gator.

The most recent attack occurred just last week as a freshman marine science major (whose name will remain withheld at her family's request) made her way to a science lab. After she crossed the the bridge spanning the swampy ground between the Wall building parking lot and the science building, the mighty 'gator darted from the reeds growing on the side of the pond. The attack was witnessed by other students; however, they are unable to comment on the event as they are all currently in therapy to rid their minds of the awful scene.

The area surprisingly showed no proof that such an event had happened there. The crocogator is so large in size that all it took was one bite with its mighty jaws before it was able to drag the unsuspecting girl into the Wall Pond. It has been reported based on previous sightings that the crocogator inhabiting the Wall Pond is an enormous 17 feet in length.

There are many speculations as to why this creature is so large, as the average adult male crocogator is only about 13 feet in length. There have been two recent theories about the size of the crocogator, including mutation due to fertilizer runoff from the Prince Lawn. The second theory, one which has been discovered by a group of local environmentalists in the law enforcement field, favor the cause of mutation to be toxic waste from a methamphetamine lab discovered under the science building. The lab is believed to have been there since some time in the early 1960s, and is basically an underground concrete bunker. While the lab has been in operation this long, researchers are still unsure of why the bunker was ever created in the first place, as it seems to be much older than 40 years. There will be an in-depth research project conducted on the waters of the Wall Pond beginning in the next few weeks. A task force has also been assigned to plan the capture of the Wall Pond crocogator.

Administration fears for the lives of students in the meantime, as the more students lost will scare off prospective students. In order to save yourself from becoming a crocogator snack, it is recommended that people do not walk along the side of the Wall Pond closest to the science building...you never know what may be lurking in the reeds.

Simpson launches a new flavored cosmetic line

Reality TV star and hit singer Jessica Simpson recently launched a new cosmetic line. Her line is called Dessert and is flavored with things such as chocolate and powdered-sugar. The line consists of products such as lip gloss, body shimmer and much more. The products are divided into three categories: Creamy, Dreamy and Juicy. Although it is flavored it is not necessarily edible; Simpson and her endorsers like to call it "kissable." There are no calories in the products- they are simply flavored. This is to prevent the unwanted fragrance taste on your skin. You can look for the products in the cosmetic store Sephora in April, or on QVC in June. For local listings of Sephora stores near you visit www.Sephora.com.

Tom Cruise and Penelope Cruz have publicly announced their breakup. After their three year relationship the two went separate ways. The two stars started their relationship soon after Tom and Nicole Kidman's divorce. The relationship received much criticism and now is following the footsteps of the recent rumors. The rumors that this happened because Tom was going back to Nicole are still in denial by both parties.

Brown gets locked up again

Singer Bobby Brown was recently released from a Georgia county jail after spending the night there for outstanding child support. He reportedly owes $63,500 to his ex-girlfriend Kim Ward for their two children, now 12 and 14. Brown told reporters, "I thought it was paid; that is what happens when other people are dealing with your business." He called the issue a "misunderstanding."

Houston in rehab

Whitney Houston has recently checked out of the Atlanta rehab center after spending five days there. Her representatives have stated that she will continue treatment outside the center. Most patients stay in rehab for between 10 and 28 days and many believe that her leaving after just five days will assure that she will be back soon.

HOT... or NOT?

By Matt Caruso
staff writer

This week I am dedicating this "What's Hot, What's Not" to spring and everything that comes with it. Spring is a time of new beginnings and that's exactly what is going to happen so this week I'm covering spring sports, bar scenes and new television shows.

With the official beginning of spring, the outside sports are back and there is a special type of fever going around. It's Major League Baseball and I can't get enough of it as the boys of summer take back to the field this week. I have to give the 2004 baseball season my "hot" pick for sports. As much as I have enjoyed the last couple of weeks of March Madness, it is finally winding down and talk of upsets has ended with the final game in a couple days. That's why I must regrettably give the NCAA March Madness my "not" sports pick until next March.

The warm weather has also brought people back to the beach and opened up many of the bars and clubs on The Strip. Nothing beats hanging out on a beach front patio and throwing a few cold ones back then diving right back into a huge dance party. That's why I have to raise my glass to Mother Fletchers and Freaky Tiki and give these bars my "hot" bar scene pick. Although Broadway at the Beach will always be a great place to chill out and converse with friends, it just doesn't embrace the spring and summer spirit like the beach strip does. My "not" pick for bar scenes this week goes to the bars at Broadway at the Beach.

During spring, many television networks start the new season of their best shows, and I thought I would fill you in on what is a must see this spring on TV. It's almost impossible to avoid what could be the funniest show on television right now, "Chappelle's Show" on Comedy Central. This show is chock-full of controversy combined with side splitting catch phrases to make this show a smash hit. Each week I find myself discussing the previous night's episode for hours, which gives "Chappelle's Show" my "hot" TV pick. As for what's not hot on television, I would have to say matchmaking reality shows. There are so many terrible versions to pick from, but by far I have to say the worst is the newest season of "Average Joe." How many times can NBC run this plot deeper and deeper into the ground? This show easily gets my TV "not" pick for this issue as I cannot stand another show with the same redundant plot.

There you have it. That's all I can say for this issue of "What's Hot, What's Not" for now. Make sure to stay hot this spring.

Point/Counterpoint: Light Beer vs. Dark Beer

Light beer: There is no better choice

By Justin Vining
business manager

The debate of light versus dark beer has been going on for quite some time now. Light beer is here to make a stand as the top and only true beer in the market. Light beer has so many better attributes than dark beer, that dark beer does not even deserve to be stocked next to a true classic American pilsner.

First off, I cannot understand why anyone would enjoy drinking a beer that they can't see through. Beer should be something that you can recognize at any time: gold, crisp and with air bubbles present. Dark beer all looks different and most of the time you have no idea what you could be drinking, nor do you really know what is actually in the beer.

Putting color aside, measuring the taste from a light beer to a dark beer is not even a comparison. Everyone knows the commercials that the true American pilsner companies produce: "less filling, same great taste." When have you ever seen a commercial for a dark beer like Newcastle that you can remember? Putting the beer girls aside, light beer commercials are always remembered. This has a direct relation to the taste; the taste of a light pilsner is always remembered. Not many people are disgusted when they try a new light beer, but a dark beer on the other hand, could be just plain terrible and you would never want to try it again. Taste is one of the major concerns for beer drinkers. A beer drinker wants to be pleased while enjoying a beer. This can only be done with a sure thing such a light beer or pilsner.

Temperature and heaviness are issues as well. Starting with temperature, beer needs to be served ice cold to give you a refreshed feeling. Light beer is always served like this, but dark beer, like Guinness, is served close to room temperature and is flat out horrible. The body of a dark beer and a light beer are quite different. I enjoy drinking a lot of beer, and I'm sure others do as well. Drinking a dark beer is so filling, it is hard to consume a large quantity of it. Sure, dark beer has more alcohol in it, but who wants to be a loaded after four beers? Being able to drink more in one sitting has to be a positive for the light beer fans. Since health issues are a major concern these days, the low carbs in a light beer have to be a positive. In fact, there are beers in the market that rid all carbohydrates from the ingredients. Dark beer, being so full, is unhealthy and brings that damn beer gut around much quicker.

Weighing all the facts, deciding what beer to pick when you find yourself standing at a bar or grocery store should not be an issue anymore. There is no need to even think about the dark beer. Just trust the facts and reach for the true American pilsner. There will be no dissatisfaction to your choice instead of picking one of the many mystery dark beers that will do God knows what to you and flat out taste like crap.

Dark Beer: Get your fill from the best

By Carson Turner
staff writer

There are over 20,000 brands of beer made in the world. Pilsners, Ale, Lager, Stout... Nothing beats an ice cold beer on a hot Myrtle Beach summer day!

I don't drink much beer - at least, not as much as some here seem to. The fact is, beer is expensive and I'm a cheapskate. When I do have a beer there are only really two choices: Budweiser in the red can (the All-American choice of "real men") and any high quality, imported, dark lager or ale (when you're in the mood for "the finer things").

Every beer connoisseur knows that pouring a perfect pint requires an ice cold bottle of Guinness. And who turns down a Sam Adams Cream Stout? Then there's the almost perfect Saint Pauli Girl Dark, "Heini" (in a can of course), and San Miguel Dark to name just a few.

Now, the way we get a dark beer is to steep all of those yummy ingredients in the fermentation vat longer than we do for those pale beers. Think about this a minute - if you're going to buy a beer, why not buy the beer that has the most "stuff" in it. Get your money's worth, if you will.

A study at the University of Wisconsin - Madison says that dark beer may be better for your heart. Remembering what happened to poor 'ole Blue in "Old School," I had better lean toward the darker brew.

And, beer is better than women! You can put all your beers in a room together and they won't fight. In the words of the indomitable Homer J. Simpson, "mmmmm beeeer."

"But officer, I did not know it was illegal!"

Bar Diaries

By Christopher Brown
staff writer

This week my travels took me to Ron Jon's, a popular bar among locals and Coastal students alike. Located on 501 across from Fantasy Harbor, this is a bar that I recommend if you are looking for a place to just chill and hang out with a few friends. My night began around 10 p.m. and the first move I made was straight to the bar. I had a seat and was immediately greeted by the bartender. Drinks were definitely priced with the college student in mind. Small drafts are $1 and the large draft, my personal favorite, is $2.50. I love the fact that unlike some other bars in Myrtle Beach, you can walk right up and have a seat at the bar. I hung out there for a little bit until a large group of my friends arrived. We all moved to a booth and began ordering shots and having a good time.

As much as I enjoyed sitting around, I had to see what else Ron Jon's had to offer. With my drink in hand, I went to walk around and see whom I could find. At first glance, it appears that this is really a small building, but there is a set of doors near the entrance that reveals another side of Ron Jon's. I found myself spending most of my time in there. There are pool tables, arcade games and another small bar. I also noticed a stage to the rear of the room, but unfortunately there was not a band playing at the time. I ran into a couple of people I know from school, and suddenly I found myself playing a few games of 8 ball. I indulged in a few more drinks, and then suddenly I began to feel a slight growl coming from my stomach.

I knew I had to satisfy my appetite, so I ordered the chicken fingers and was soon in for a treat. Let me tell you, I consider myself a chicken finger connoisseur, and these were some of the best. The morning was coming up fast, so once I finished up with my food it was time to go. Ron Jon's is a great local bar, but it did have its drawbacks. The service wasn't great and the staff could have been friendlier. With all that said, if you're looking for a late night spot to play billiards and have a few drinks, this is the bar for you. So hopefully I'll see you out at Ron Jon's and until next time, remember to study hard but always party harder.

CD Review: Homeless Joe's "Shoes With Holes"

By Matt Caruso
staff writer

This week I reviewed the newest and hottest singer in Myrtle Beach, Homeless Joe and his recently released album, "Shoes With Holes." I had a chance to see Homeless Joe perform after making a wrong turn down an ally one night at The Strip. His performance blew me away so I made sure I got a copy of his new CD.

Homeless Joe has a style all his own. It's a mix of country, rock, bluegrass and wild ramblings all rolled into one amazing album. This one man band and singer has been performing on the streets of Myrtle Beach for the last three years after realizing his talent in playing four of his personalized instruments ranging from a rusty cow bell, a harmonica, an empty paint can with a stick and a large jug. Locals and tourists alike have stopped during even their busiest days to take a minute and listen to the soothing and confusing lyrics of Homeless Joe where he plays and resides behind a dumpster on 12th Avenue N. in Myrtle Beach.

The album was very interesting, as some of the songs like "What's That Smell," and "Where's My Shoe" really make you think about which smell he's is actually talking about. My favorite song, "Soup Kitchen Romance," is about the love of his life, a girl he meets that works at his favorite chow line, but she breaks his heart. She falls in love with the soup chef, and moves to the kitchen five miles away out of walking distance and out of his life. The song is a bit depressing but the instrumentals are great. Some songs like "Day Old Bagels" and "My Favorite Mut" have some of the best paint can and stick solos I have ever heard in my life and really capture a good acoustic feeling.

Overall the CD is a great buy. For 2 cheeseburgers and a bottle of cheap vodka, it can't be beat. You can find this CD on sale at many of your local shelters and soup kitchens, or you can order it directly by going down to the dumpster off of 12th Avenue N. where Homeless Joe records and resides.

Homeless Joe will also be touring the Myrtle Beach Strip promoting his new album all of this month and probably for the next year or so.

Students rock, grill out

By Christopher Ferguson
for The Chanticleer

On Wednesday, March 25, four piece pop-punk band Left Front Tire, from Cornelia, Ga. preformed at the Student Center deck; Coastal Productions sponsored the event. The concert was the second stop on the band's month-long tour of Southeastern universities and colleges.

The event began at 5:30 p.m. with members of the band unloading their instruments and setting up on stage. Front man Chip Dillard looked perplexed.

"Where is everybody?" he asked.

The deck was empty, but that was before the aromas of grilled food and the grooves of Georgia's Left Front Tire filled the air.

While the band was warming up on stage, members of Coastal Productions were warming up the grill and anticipating a large turnout.

"We've had a great turnout for our events so far this year," Amanda Silva, of Coastal Productions, boasted. "This is our first time having a band play...so I'm very excited," she added. "We have gotten a lot of requests for bands in the past," Silva said.

Coastal Productions decided to book the band after attending a college programming conference. The conferences are designed to help both colleges and performers with scheduling student events.

"If we were taking marketing classes in college this would be our target group," Dillard joked.

Members of the band joined students in the line for food. Josh Davis, the band's drummer, made sure that there was "no cutting" as the band members mingled freely with students.

"It's nice when we get an opportunity to play for our peers...they're around the same age as us, so we can relate to them," Dillard said. Slowly the line for hamburgers and hotdogs began to grow and several students who were wandering around campus came over to investigate. Jennifer Sanders, a marine science major, was getting out of class when she "heard music and saw smoke."

"Is the food free?" she asked sheepishly.

Left Front Tire rocks out on the Student Center Deck after a cookout on Wednesday, March 25, sponsored by the Coastal Productions Board.

The food was indeed free and helped to attract a hungry crowd of around 60 students.

The band took the stage at around 6:30 p.m., just before the setting sun sank in the sky. With the wind picking up and the last rays of the sun gone, guitarist Jason Holcomb found himself huddling for warmth.

"I think my fingers are frozen," he told the crowd.

The band played a 30 minute set, which included songs from their newest release "42 Ways to Lose a Friend." With influences ranging from heavy metal to country, Left Front Tire borrows a little from each musical genre. "We grew up listening to anything from Guns 'n Roses to Willie Nelson," Dillard said.

The group's sound is a little country, but a bit more rock 'n' roll.

The band uses upbeat pop sensibilities to create rhythm and downbeat lyrics to tell a story. The lyrics reflect the confusion and angst of youth, which is something that "everyone can relate to," according to Dillard. Frantic guitars and breakneck drumming accompanied the lyrics and somehow found their place beside the group's impressive sense of harmony. Their sound was youthful and gritty, but at the same time polished and clean.

The band achieved national notoriety in 2001 when they appeared on the "American Pie 2" Soundtrack, but touring and playing for the fans is the band's greatest joy.

As Davis explained, "We all have day jobs...just like everybody else."

He also commented about being on the road for long periods of time.

He motioned to the group's van, "Can you believe we live in that thing for a month?" he asked.

After their set, the band moved quickly to pack their instruments.

"We have to be at Savannah Armstrong Atlantic College by tomorrow...I hope we can find it," Dillard said.

The event was an excellent opportunity for the band to get their name out and a great chance for students to enjoy the festive outdoor atmosphere. Coastal Productions is currently scheduling more student events and is always open to suggestions.

FUN WITH SHAVING CREAM

This is an old trick, but is always good for a cheap laugh. While the victim is sleeping, put shaving cream all over his or her hands and then tickle the person's face with a feather. He or she will end up with a face full of shaving cream and it will all be the victim's doing.

RIPPER

Place an object on the floor where you know someone will bend over to pick it up. Position yourself nearby with some scraps of cloth that tear easily with a noisy rip. Just wait until the victim bends over to pick up the object. At the precise moment that the he or she bends over, rip the cloth. You'll be surprised at how many people reach around immediately to grab their ass, checking for rips.

TOILET HUMOR

Before you have some friends over, videotape your bathroom (while it's empty) for 10 minutes. While your guests are over, play the tape while the victim enters the bathroom. Tell your other guests to start laughing hysterically while the victim is in there. Watch the victim as he or she comes out to see what the noise is about and recognizes the bathroom on the TV screen.

TOILET HUMOR 2

This one may end in screaming, so choose your victim wisely. You will need Saran Wrap and a toilet. Lift the toilet seat and tightly wrap the bowl in Saran Wrap. Make sure there are no lines or creases. This trick is best when done in the evening. Perhaps after a night of drinking or really late at night while the victim sleeps; just whenever the victim is least likely to pay attention to the toilet when he or she goes to use it.

TOILET HUMOR 3

Pour jello mix into the victim's toilet. Just give it some time and it will harden beautifully. Lemon may be your best bet if you need a convincing color. Try this one at night, as well. Screaming may occur when they realize everything is laying on top of the jello. This trick is toilet friendly - the jello breaks up and flushes down the toilet nicely.

EDITORIALS

When I think about University Place, several thoughts come to mind. The benefits of living at UP include the activity house and pool, larger rooms, older students, full kitchens, independence from the campus, and the freedom to drink if you are of age. On the other hand, there are two down sides to UP that could be prevented and make living there a little less stressful.

One example is that prison vibe I get when I drive home from class at 10 p.m. and the guards make me stop to show my ID, shine flashlights in my vehicle and take the names and IDs of any passengers with me (who will now be sure not to visit again). If people have to come over to UP, they now try to arrive before 9 p.m. and in some cases 8:45 p.m. to avoid the hassle. I understand that the guards are there to protect us. They are just doing their job, and are scheduled to show up at 9 p.m. and leave at 5 a.m. Strangely, UP has guards on duty at times when they are not even on campus, and this is what disturbs me.

UP was pitched to us last year as a place to live with greater independence and more freedom than living on campus. However, midway through last semester we were greeted with guards at our entrance. At first everyone was outraged, but the leniency of the guards helped that anger subside and we got used to the stop and wave on our way in. Lately, things have not been so lax. There are more guards it seems and they are equipped with flashlights. I assume they are looking for alcohol, drugs and things that may be a threat to students such as weapons. That's all well and good, but are we at a greater risk of danger than the Woods community for instance?

claimed it would be. If getting us to leave is part of the plan, enforcing stricter rules and putting guards in to monitor us is working, and there will be plenty of space for freshmen next year. Hopefully this is not the case, and the guards will work toward being there to protect us from outside dangers, rather than ourselves and our friends from campus.

Then, there is the issue of the commute to campus. Who would have thought that all of ber of fatal accidents. That is ridiculous! Basically they are saying that if we want a light, some of us are going to have to die. I'm sorry, but this cause is not worth dying for. Maybe with the construction of the new plaza on 544 the pressure will be on to put in a traffic light, but maybe not. We want to know if there is anyone from Coastal lobbying for us, or if we will be left to deal with it ourselves. Who is going to take action on our behalf?

So we will continue to stop and smile for the guards, most of who, I must add, are very kind. We will cautiously pull out of UP and trust the other drivers on the road not to hit us. We will leave early so we can sit in traffic where the light should be and wait our turn to risk our lives, and we will do all this without much resistance because we have other things to worry about. After the huge push they gave us to live off campus and over at UP, it is unfortunate that the students living there now are not viewed as valuable enough to receive a little safety. On the bright side, at least we have plenty of security.

-- A Concerned Student

University Place: Did we do something to deserve this?

I don't understand why we need the heightened security when we are supposedly more responsible. Does this seem intrusive to anyone else? I have heard that yes, it does.

Folks are talking about not staying at UP next year because it is not what everyone us would have to risk our lives just to get to class, and in some cases several times a day? I'm talking about the exit of Residence Blvd. onto 544 or as I like to call it-the DANGER ZONE. I have heard that in order to get a light put in, there needs to be a certain num-

Student Concern: "Where's Willett?"

How do we, as students, define a Vice President of Student Affairs/Dean of Students (VPSA/DS) and what do we expect from this person? I suppose the most important attribute is accessibility. Is he or she accessible for students to come to, and do students know where his or her office is located? These are some things to think about.

What about being supportive of events that students are conducting or even events that departments that report to the person in this position are conducting? One would think that the VPSA/DS would be and should be seen at many of these events, supporting the students and departments. How about student opinions? They should make an impact on decisions being made, since much that is done on campus depends on money that comes from student tuition. Students are the reason for the position of VPSA/DS, so student opinions should be valued by the person holding this position. We expect this person to be someone students can go to and feel safe with and know that their confidence will be upheld. Should students have to schedule a meeting with him or her a week in advance to talk about issues they have?

Since Dr. Bob retired, many students either do not know the VPSA/DS or else wonder who she is. Since taking over the position in July of 2003, Dr. Lynn Willett has really not been as visible or accessible to students as students may think she should be. From how we, as students, define a VPSA/DS and what we expect from the person, how do we know Dr. Willett is going to live up to our expectations when students get very little contact with her and have seen her at very few events? It seems like she is not what students expect or want from a VPSA/DS. While she has been successful at setting up a Student Advisory Council, does she feel that this select group of students is giving her enough student contact that she should be offering to all students? As a student who sat in on one of her interviews, she gave me the impression that she was going to be supportive and student friendly and make constructive changes to Coastal, but students have yet to see anything other than a decline in the quality of services offered to them. Students realize that change cannot happen overnight, but we do expect to know what her plans are for the future. Students would like to know why it is so important that one of her main job responsibilities is to be there for students and be supportive of the things we do, and why it is not being done. Maybe we try to compare her too much to Dr. Bob, who is someone she could never be. You never had to wonder if he was going to come to student events, nor was it a concern if your event was good enough for him to attend. Also, you never saw Dr. Bob looking for events that other top administrators were going to be at or looking for events where it was going to be a good public relations opportunity for him to grace with his presence. Dr. Bob only cared to be supportive to students and make their college experience the best they could have. Dr. Willett, can you offer the same caring, compassionate and supportive attitude that the students came to want and expect, like what had been offered to us for so long?

Dinner and a movie: "Shredder" and a frozen dinner

By Randy Engstrom
staff writer

With the weather warming up like it has been, I decided it would be in my best interest to see one of the hottest and latest movies to come into theaters. I'll be shocked if you haven't heard of the latest Greg Hudson film, "Shredder." This movie is all it is hyped up to be, and better. This film is full of the best actors and actresses coming out of Hollywood. Stars such as Scott Weinger, Lindsey McKeon, Juleah Weikel, and even Holly Towne graced the screen with their presence.

The interaction between all these actors was magical. Never in my life have I left a movie feeling so fulfilled and eager to watch it again and again. This movie was so well written and performed that it left me with a, dare I say, mental orgasm.

The movie followed seven friends who chose to make an adventurous weekend getaway by going to an abandoned ski lodge to party and snowboard all weekend long. The fun, however, quickly turns to fright when a psychotic killer goes on a rampage up and down the slopes. Bodies begin to add up and it is up to the remaining survivors to switch things around and rid the mountain of the ruthless maniac. Can they do it? You'll have to watch the movie to find out.

I'm sure you are used to those typical scary movies that are so predictable that it's not even fun to watch, but this one really does a great job of hiding what will be in the next scene. This was full of so many twists and turns that it keeps you on the edge of your seat. When you go watch this, be sure to bring along a friend for each arm to grab onto because you will definitely need it with the suspense this film brings to theaters.

This movie rivals classics such as the thrillers "Psycho," "Exorcist," and the latest "Scream." This movie will be talked about for years to come. It is great to see that Hollywood isn't just a bunch of crap after all; there are still a few people out there who are here to make masterpieces and not just after the all mighty dollar. I highly recommend heading out to Hoyts and checking out this flick, unless you want to be out of the loop. This new and latest film to hit theaters will be all that is talked about around the water coolers for weeks to come. And what better way to top an evening of shills and thrills on the slopes than to have a superb meal from the local grocery store. All you have to do is walk in and head straight for the frozen food aisle. Find the Banquet section, and then you can choose from there what combination of delicious items you want. Banquet is, as the box says, America's #1 Frozen Brand. Banquet has been around for almost 50 years providing us with its deliciously made meals. The company has everything from Salisbury steak meals to crispy fried chicken. I always have faith in Banquet to provide a great tasting meal for a sweet deal. And this time I chose the turkey meal.

This included turkey and gravy with dressing, mashed potatoes and even peas. What a deal.

Another sweet part about these meals is the time it takes to prepare them. It doesn't take any more than seven minutes to have a complete meal prepared and ready to devour, and devour I did. Shoot, it's not even a bad idea to buy two of these great tasting meals and cook them up at the same time. A day without a Banquet meal is like a day with out any air. Be sure to pick them up and enjoy.

Staff Editorial

Spring is often a time for changes and new beginnings and at Coastal the story is no different. Walking around campus lately, you may have seen some of these changes, and we at The Chanticleer feel that they are for the better.

Among the changes around campus, there are five in particular that we would like to note: The new (and might we add, working) fountain in Spadoni Park, the new call boxes, the new Bursar's office, the surveys that have been circulating through emails, and a (shock and awe) freshly paved science building parking lot.

The new fountain in Spadoni Park is a nice site for all to enjoy. Even though the rest of the improvements to the park have not been completed, the fountain is there, it works (unlike the one in the Edwards courtyard that often does not operate as a fountain should) and it is even lit for a twinkle of water falling in the night hours. It's nice to see something aesthetically pleasing and to have an area to enjoy the outdoors. Once it is finished, it will certainly be a nice place to spend time on warm, sunny days.

The replaced call boxes are a benefit to the safety of everyone on campus.

They are much more visible (and also visually pleasing) than the old ones. Several of the old ones were so buried in the scenery of their locations that it would have been difficult to find them in the case of an emergency. With the larger and more visible call boxes, an individual will most likely be able to quickly spot the call box should he or she need to use it.

A month or so ago, people probably noticed the relocated trailer across the street from the Financial Aid office. This is to be the new Bursar's office once they move out of the Singleton building. Workers are quickly preparing the building for the move. The outside has now been bricked so that it will nicely blend in with other surrounding buildings. This new location will also be a convenience to people needing to go back and forth between the Bursar's office and Financial Aid office. It is also closer to the dorms which is an added convenience for students that live on campus.

Recently there have been two surveys sent out via email in order to gain a better sense of direction with campus parking issues and campus dining. If you have not seen or responded to these surveys, we recommend that you check your Coastal email account and voice your opinion. It is very important that if the "higher ups" ask students for input, the students give as much input as they can. The parking survey presented several options that may help with the crowded parking lots on campus. The campus dining survey asked a variety of questions about different meals at both The Commons and Cino Grille. Surveys let students know that administration is looking for help and is making the effort to improve issues.

Finally, we save the best for last: the freshly paved parking lot at the back of the science building. We have been waiting forever for the land of potholes to finally become one smooth surface. First the holes were filled with gravel, which still made for a bumpy ride when driving through the lot, but at least was not like dodging landmines in a desert anymore. But then, coming back from Spring Break, there it was—the glorious site of pavement. Whoever thought that the generally unpleasant smell of new tar could actually be something to be excited about?

So all in all, it seems that progress is being made all over campus as far as the resolution of issues is concerned, and we are quite happy to see that. We are sure that others are as well.

THE LITTLEST EDITOR SPEAKS: THOUGHTS FROM JESSICA McMURRER

Alright devoted readers, it's time for me to make a confession: I am not the Littlest Editor. In fact, I am not the littlest of anything. I weigh over 200 pounds and wear a size 12 in men's shoes. The staff and I just decided that saying I was a small skinny person would be funny, you know like calling a big bouncer man Tiny. And "Thoughts from the Fat Blob of an Editor" doesn't have a pleasant ring to it and doesn't look good in print. Sorry for the confusion.

Well for those of you who know me, that wasn't the greatest April Fool's Day joke ever, but it was all I could think of.

When I was going over in my mind all of the options for writing, I pondered many things such as my confusion regarding religion and whether or not I will be spending eternity in Hell because of my various sins, a recap of my Spring Break events, the many issues in the political scene, or my frustration with Coastal's Internet. However, upon closer inspection of the calendar, I realized that the only appropriate topic for my thoughts was April Fool's Day.

April Fool's Day may not be a "real" holiday since schools and banks are not closed and no gifts are exchanged, but it's still one of my favorite days of the year. This first day of April is all about fun, jokes, games and laughs. Of course, cruel pranks on close family and friends are also a great part of the day as well.

All of this foolishness associated with the first of April was started by the French. Of course, the French can be blamed for most foolishness. Well anyway, prior to 1582 the New Year was celebrated at the end of March with celebrations ending on April 1. In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII changed the calendar so that the New Year began on the first of January. It seems that the French didn't get the memo about the change or just decided to ignore it because many of the people still celebrated the New Year on April 1. They were quickly deemed "fools" by their peers. As the years progressed, people started to make these fools run phony errands, or they would play other jokes and pranks on the fools. And well, the rest is history.

Now that we've had that insightful history lesson, we can all make the most of this day of fun, fools and trickery. April Fool's pranks and jokes can range from the simple and classic "Kick Me" sign to more elaborate things involving a hot glue gun, a live duck, a road cone and a few fireworks (however, I do not recommend the combination of these items; I have discovered that the police and PETA don't like it very much).

The most important thing to remember when pulling a prank is execution. If there are many people involved in the joke, make sure that they all know their parts and that they keep a straight face throughout. This is especially important when telling lies. The person who is being told the untruth will certainly see through the deceit if people are laughing and smiling uncontrollably. Timing is also of the utmost importance when executing some pranks. If, for instance, you are applying super-glue to your roommate's computer mouse or setting back all of his clocks, it is important that you know his schedule perfectly so that he does not come home in the middle of your activities.

Thanks to instant messenger and email, April Fool's pranks that involve lying have become incredibly easy. You can tell friends and family back home that you are pregnant, dropping out of school to join the circus, were part of a medical study for money that went terribly wrong or got a tattoo of the CCU mascot across your entire chest, and they will be more likely to believe you because they will not be able to see or hear you laughing hysterically.

So in conclusion, happy April Fool's Day everyone; make sure to enjoy the day of fun and laughs. However, be careful; you don't want to do or say anything that won't be forgiven or forgotten tomorrow.

I hope everyone had a great Spring Break. I guess it's time to buckle down on those end-of-the-year papers and projects. Know what I think? I think that our individual teachers get together after the break to say, "Ok, how can we make these last five weeks as miserable as possible?" They find out when we are having tests and reschedule them to overlap our other assignments. Just kidding of course. Making my teachers mad for these last few weeks would not help me at all.

I am happy to report the SGA Elections are completed, and your officers for the 2004-2005 school year will be: Antonio Pee as Secretary, Lisa Sharpe as Treasurer, John Adamec as Vice President, and Taurean Davis as President. Make sure to congratulate these students when you see them. These officers will travel to Washington, D.C. for a national leadership conference April 15-18.

There are two new administrative positions open for next year: The Dean of Students and the Director of Residence Life. The following students will serve on the search committee throughout the summer to insure student input is maintained: Emma Sellers and Janet Shokal serve as members of the Director of Residence Life committee, and Kelly Moore and Sean Kobos serve as members of the Dean of Students search committee. If you have any questions or concerns for these students, talk to them when you see them on campus or place a message for them in the SGA President's box in the Office of Student Activities.

Special Edition 'Sex on the Beach'

Dear Lollita,

My girlfriend says her favorite thing to do is kiss; she thinks that kissing is the sexiest and most important part of intercourse. I have a hard time getting into a kiss, and I don't even know if I am a good kisser. I would love to improve my kissing ability for her and give her the best kiss she has ever experienced, but I don't know how. Can you give me some tips to help me become a skilled kisser?

Lip Locked

Dear Locked,

Kissing is a passionate way to show someone how you feel about them. There are ways to move and things to do that can help both you and your partner to feel more involved in the kiss. First try opening your mouth and locking lips, and start with a traditional kissing motion. To vary the style of the kiss alternate soft, gentle kisses with harder, more passionate ones as you become more stimulated. Relax your tongue and try moving the tip back and forth as if it was drawing a picture in your partner's mouth. Something else to try is letting out the slightest moan. Just as you like to hear her moan during sex to know that you are pleasing her, she likes to hear you moan during kissing. Noise of pleasure is sexy to hear anytime from a partner.

"Supersex" author Tracey Cox gives some good tips about kissing. Always incorporate your hands into kissing; it should never just be about your mouths. If you use your whole body to kiss her, then her whole body will be effected by your kiss. If you are looking to spice things up a bit, try biting or sucking slightly on her tongue or lips. This will give her a sensation that there is more to come. Let your tongue be your second form of penetration and your guide for what is to happen next. This way you have a mutual guide to what the other person wants without the use of words. Most of all start slow and soft and she will guide you in a further direction.

Dear Lollita,

I am a 20 year old women and my long-term boyfriend just left me for an older women. I want to get him back, but I am unsure why he is suddenly attracted to older women. Why do guys, including my ex, have fantasies about older women?

Mistified Miss

Lollita is not a licensed doctor or psychiatrist, although she is a licensed driver. She is just a single, hot, funny and knowledgeable girl that gives advice on everyone's favorite topic for free. So if you have a serious problem go see a doctor. If the material in this column offends you, avert your eyes. To reach Lollita, letters may be dropped off in The Chanticleer box in the Student Activities office or in the drop box outside The Chanticleer office located in room 206 of the Student Center. You can also email Lollita at chanticleer@coastal.edu.

Dear Mistified,

While losing your man to another woman can always leave a bad taste in your mouth, a man's attraction to an older woman is a very common feeling. At some time in every man's life, he will probably fantasize about an older woman; some act on it and some do not. It is not the age that they are fantasizing about, but much more.

First, a woman in her 30s has been through a few lovers, and with this comes experience. The older woman has seen all types of lovers, from premature ejaculators to the all nighters. She's taught many men her secrets and may have even learned a thing or two. Secondly, an older woman is not afraid to direct her man where to go. If she needs certain stimulation, instead of hoping the man will do it, she will show him exactly what she wants. Older women are also capable of satisfying some of their own needs. This takes the pressure off the man and allows him to further enjoy the experience.

According to Tracey Cox, author of "Supersex," in any relationship one person always takes more control in the bedroom. In this case the age difference allows the woman to take charge, and the man to feel sexy. Since women focus less on intercourse and orgasms, when they take charge it becomes about giving each other pleasure. Thirdly, older women take their time. While many men may ejaculate quickly and even sometimes on cue, they also love when things are built up and take time. This way the man's orgasm is twice as intense, and it gives the woman a better chance of reaching one as well. But lastly, and possibly most importantly, older women have confidence. Many therapists say that the confidence is the key. Men like a woman that knows what she wants in the bedroom and most of all, is not afraid to ask for it.

So in the end, my advice to you is if you want him back, you can be young in age, but mature in how you carry yourself and what you do. When you see him, be in that place in your mind where you know you look great, feel great and are great. Have confidence in all you do and it will shine through on the outside and be noticed by others, maybe even your ex. But whether you get back together or not, confidence will help you in all areas of life and maybe even help you realize that you can have someone much better than him.

Universe now wacko because of Jacko

By Jessica McMurrer
assistant editor

Student researchers at both CCU and Horry-Georgetown Technical College have been doing extensive studies on various events and occurrences in the Grand Strand area, the U.S. and the world, and they have concluded that there is only one cause for the disturbances to the universe—Michael Jackson's current child molestation case.

Locally, the team of aspiring scientists attribute the snows of winter, the coolness of March, the horrible traffic on Hwy 501 and the recent blackout at Coastal all to the fact that Jackson is now being charged by the state of California for his odd and possibly illegal relationships with children. Originally the group was thinking that the cause of the events may have been explained more scientifically, possibly by greenhouse gases or tidal changes, but that idea was vetoed after Jacko announced his membership to the Nation of Islam.

"We concluded that no other event on this planet or in the universe could alter the processes of Earth quite like the fact that Michael Jackson has joined forces with the Nation of Islam just after he was officially charged with child molestation," explained the co-leader of the research team. He asked that his name not be revealed to ensure the integrity of the study as it is ongoing.

The child molestation case and the involvement with the Nation of Islam are not the only Jackson explanations being explored by the researchers. One of the students focusing on alternative explanations stated that the change in Jackson's skin color, his financial problems and fact that he always thinks it is raining and carries an umbrella are other possible reasons for the strange events.

"We always knew Michael was the King of Pop. But if the world is changing so dramatically just because he is now on trial, does that mean he's also God?" questioned one of the CCU students involved with the project.

However, it is far too early for the students to speculate that Jackson is actually the creator and ruler of the universe. The group will not deny that the King of Pop does seem to play an important role in the balance of various environmental systems and processes.

The CCU and HGTC students are also working in conjunction with similar groups across the nation to explain the possible changes to our world that could be caused by the fact that Arnold Schwarzenegger is now the governor of California.

Feature Story

The piercing noises. The desperate cries. The eerie costumes. The environment makes you want to scream.

Mission accomplished.

S.C.R.E.A.M. reads across the shirts of several Coastal Carolina students at various sporting events. The acronym stands for Student Community Restoring Enthusiasm at Athletic Matches and has become an essential support group in Chanticleer spirit.

You won't see them doing continuous back flips down the sidelines at football games, nor will they be wearing CCU cheerleading outfits. These aren't cheerleaders. S.C.R.E.A.M. represents a different and equally valuable form of support: student fan-led cheering.

The club was created in 2003 by former CCU basketball player Tony Darden. He wasted little time in getting this show on the road.

"I remember at Club Day, he had this bullhorn and he was just screaming his head off," said Amanda Colon. "Of course it catches your ear and I went over to the table to find out what was going on."

Colon was obviously impressed. She is now the S.C.R.E.A.M. secretary.

With Darden gone, who declined an offer to play basketball overseas, now working for Wells Fargo in Conway, the president spot has been filled by Vanessa Suggs. She has already made advancements on the young program.

"What I wanted to do this summer is I wanted to get new stuff," said Suggs. "I got the design for the T-shirts. I wanted to get different promo stuff that we could throw in the stands, like mini footballs or different T-shirts we could give out to the first thousand fans or whatever I could so we could get our name out there and get more people involved."

Darden was responsible for many recruits in the first year. The club had approximately 20 members in its inaugural year.

"He told me something about it and he told me to stop by," said Kara Reinhard. "I came by. In high school I was a cheerleader but I didn't want to cheer [any more]. But I wanted to be involved. I [went] to the meeting and caught a grasp of what I wanted to do."

Other students have decided to follow suit. The cost for membership is $10 and the member status now numbers 55. Aside from club recruitment day, the ways members are persuaded to join are various.

"I developed a relationship with Vanessa over the summer through instant messaging because she thought I was somebody else and it kind of just started from there," said Jennifer English. "[She] instant messaged me one day and asked if I want to join. I said sure because I've always been a spirited person."

Now this close knit group sits in room 322 of the Wall building every Thursday brainstorming how to step it up notch by notch, but the epitome of being a member usually comes naturally.

"Whenever you go to a sporting event and you hear people screaming and yelling, you're going to do it too," said Katelyn Montagna.

Joining is simple too. E-mailing scream@coastal.edu could have you wearing basketball masks, putting volleyball Ks up in Kimbel Arena or even holding up cardiac signs for the baseball team characteristic of comebacks. It stops there for now, but innovative ideas are always in the heads of members, especially Suggs.

"This coming year we're going to have foam noodles because we can't have thunder sticks," said Suggs. "We even talk to some of the players to see if they have any more suggestions of what we could do."

Coaches even encourage the chaos.

"The coaches know me from the athletic department because I go to almost every game," Suggs said. "They know who to come to."

Who needs thunder sticks when you can get foam noodles? Look out because S.C.R.E.A.M. is at a Coastal sporting event near you.

Liberty's Katie Feenstra Honored As All-American, Virginia State Player Of The Year

LYNCHBURG, Va. - The accolades for Katie Feenstra keep coming in what has been arguably the greatest single-season ever by a Lady Flame in Women's Basketball. Beginning the season as a Street & Smith's Honorable All-American, Feenstra has ended the season being named to the Associated Press Honorable All-American Team, while receiving one first-team vote. Feenstra has also been named the 2004 Virginia Player of the Year by Richmond's Times Dispatch; never before has a player been designated in any sport by the Richmond Times Dispatch as the best player state. In what has truly been a remarkable season, Feenstra has accumulated numerous individual honors this past season. Earlier this season, she was named as the 2003-04 Big South Player of the Year for the second-consecutive year (having been named the Choice Hotels Player of the Week a record nine times during the regular season), the 2004 Advance Auto Parts Big South Tournament MVP for the second-straight season and being named to the Kodak/WBCA Region II All-American Team. The junior posted career numbers, averaging 21.1 points, 11.0 rebounds and 2.6 blocks per game, while shooting 65.7 percent from the field and posting 21 double-doubles. Feenstra is the only player in the nation to rank in the top 15 in field goal percentage (1st), scoring (6th), rebounding (10th) and blocks (12th). Against Winthrop on February 3, she set a Liberty single-game scoring record (40) as she became the ninth player in Lady Flames' history to amass the 1,000-point plateau and just the fourth Lady Flame to have 1,000 career points and 500 career rebounds.

The Big South Sports Report

Danny Gathings Named AP Honorable Mention All-America

HIGH POINT, N.C. - High Point junior forward Danny Gathings has been named to the 2004 Associated Press Honorable Mention All-America team. Gathings, from Winston-Salem, N.C., was the Big South's Player of the Year in 2004 as well as the MVP of the 2004 Big South Tournament. He is the first High Point player to earn All-America status at the NCAA Division I level. Gathings led the Big South with 12 double-doubles, which ranked 16th nationally this season. He ranked among Big South leaders in scoring (15.8 ppg, 4th), rebounding (8.0 rpg, 2nd), field-goal percentage (.531, 3rd) steals (1.60 spg, 11th), and free throw percentage (.686, 11th). Gathings will enter his senior season with 922 points scored in two seasons at HPU (and 1,061 total, which includes his freshman year at Virginia Tech). "This is a great honor for me," Gathings said. "I'm proud and excited to receive this award, but it wouldn't have been possible without the support and hard work of my coaches and teammates. We had a great season, and I can't wait for next year." In their first season under head coach Bart Lundy, the Panthers went 19-11 and were the nation's third-most improved team during the regular season. HPU advanced to the finals of the Big South Tournament for the second time in three years. Other standouts to earn honorable mention All-America honors included Kentucky's Gerald Fitch, Duke's Luol Deng and J.J. Redick, Oklahoma State's Tony Allen, Vanderbilt's Matt Freije, and Pittsburgh's Carl Krauser.

High Point Tennis Knocks Off Charleston Southern Tennis Roundup For Thursday, Mar. 25

High Point's men's and women's tennis teams knocked off Charleston Southern by 6-1 counts Thursday afternoon at the Millis Center Tennis Complex. The Panther men improved to 9-3 (2-1 in Big South play), while the Buccaneers fell to 3-10 (1-3). On the women's side, HPU won its third straight and moved above .500 at 6-5 (2-1 in the Big South).

The Lady Bucs dipped to 0-3 both overall and against Big South opposition. Sarah McDonough and Jenny Rabanal got the Panthers going with an 8-0 win over Kim Kennedy and Jessica Bair at No. 2 doubles. McDonough then turned around and won her No. 4 singles match over Kennedy in straight sets (6-0, 6-0). Rabanal also tallied a win on the singles side after defeating Kristen Barrows, 6-0, 6-0, at No. 5. The High Point men were led by Johan Dorfh and Chris Archer who were victorious at No. 1 doubles, 8-4, over Charleston Southern's Quentin Guichard and Jean-Pierre De Lange. Dorfh then downed CSU's Kultwaro Lephuthino by a 6-1, 6-0 count at No. 2 singles. Archer was also impressive in his number three singles victory over Lebo Jacobs, 6-2, 6-1. The Panthers will hit the court again on Monday when they travel to Appalachian State for a non-conference matchup. First serve is scheduled for 2:30 pm.

For the second time in as many days the Birmingham-Southern men's and women's tennis teams swept a Big South Conference opponent, this time knocking off Liberty at the Esbenshade-Hershey Tennis Courts Thursday. The BSC men (5-7, 3-2 Big South) won its third straight match with a convincing 6-1 decision over the Flames, while

Oustide the highlights

By Danny Nolan

I want to meet the person who has his bracket perfect to this point so I could sit him down and congratulate him for being a dope!

What level-headed sports fan would seriously consider any of those Cinderella teams as viable Sweet Sixteen picks?

I spend most of my summers working in Ocean City, MD. at a tiny dock bar and café that caters to serious sailors and multimillionaires taking their yachts out for the weekend. Most of my time was spent staring at the beautiful people that would walk around the pool, but every once in a while I would have time to catch a little elder wisdom from some of those serious sailors while they downed their beers.

It was a fisherman by the name of Greenie that said to me, "They say it's always calmest before the storm. That's not true. It isn't calm before the storm. Stuff happens."

I thanked Greenie for his crazy wisdom and then went back to watching the trophy wives tanning by the pool. I thought nothing of it until halfway through the third day of the NCAA basketball tournament when I said, "What the hell happened to my Brackett?" and understood what the crazy old fisherman meant.

Geez, Danny, what of this fisherman wisdom made me think this was about basketball?

Well, it is!

Kentucky was stunned by UAB!

Gonzaga got bounced by Nevada!

Mississippi State was whipped by Xavier!

Stanford was sent packing by Alabama!

N.C. State was given the boot by Vanderbilt!

And before I knew it, I was left blacking out so many teams on my bracket that it started to look like two giant black arrows pointing to the center saying, "You will not win this 200 bucks."

The fisherman fits in how?

Well, I took Greenie's fisherman wisdom as the idea that Cinderella teams do not come from out of the blue. The talent has been there all season, but it just wasn't on ESPN or CBS playing Kentucky or Stanford and we just didn't see it coming. But not knowing about these teams' "hidden" talent is the same reason the everyday Joe and Jill fall in love with these teams that defy the odds by knocking off the number ones and number twos of college basketball.

When the NCAA brackets were selected, Billy Packer, a Wake Forest graduate and C B S

cont. from page A8 Panther women (9-4, 3-2) also recorded their third consecutive win with a 5-2 victory over the Lady Flames. In the men's match, the Panthers swept all three doubles matches to take a 1-0 lead into singles play. From there, BSC won five of six matches all in straight sets. Ben Johnson, playing No. 2 for the first time this season, won in addition to teammates Justin Malina, Richard Turner, Mauricio Engler and David Ray at slots 3-6, respectively. Braen Aneiros claimed the lone point for the Flames (7-7, 1-3), downing Eric Baumgardner at No. 1.

The Panther women also won the opening double point, winning at No.'s 2 and 3 to begin the contest. BSC then went on to claim wins at No.'s 2, 4, 5 and 6 singles as Jennifer Williams, Cammie Nix, Laura Kirk and Casey Ragsdale all registered wins. Liberty's Jonita Randolph defeated Charlotte Ann Kelly at No.1, and Chanell Meijer downed Daisy Humphrey at No. 3 for the Lady Flames (9-5, 4-3).

Both Panther squads take a day off before resuming their four-match road trip by facing Charleston Southern Saturday at 10 a.m. CST. High Point Tops Gardner-Webb, 4-3 Baseball Roundup For Wednesday, Mar. 24

High Point got back on track with a 4-3 win over in-state rival Gardner-Webb Wednesday afternoon in non-conference baseball action at Varsity Field in Boiling Springs. The Panthers snapped a four-game skid and improve to 5-19, while the Bulldogs dipped to 11-14. The Panthers took advantage of three GWU errors and used a few timely hits to erase a 3-1 deficit.

Gardner-Webb took an early 2-0 lead in the bottom of the second. Matt Bridges doubled to lead off the inning, then scored on a passed ball for an early 1-0 lead. Joey Testa then singled home Billy McCarson for a 2-0 edge off of High Point starter Phil Leake.

The Panthers broke the ice in the top of the fourth to get on the board against Bulldog ace Joey Siak. Chris Ramirez singled to left with one out in the frame, then moved to third on a failed pickoff attempt at first base. Ramirez would score moments later on a GWU fielding error to cut the lead to 2-1.

A triple to center by Testa to lead off the fifth put the hosts back in business, as he later scored on a double to left center by Sammy Styers to push the lead to 3-1.

The Panthers' Corey Stang began the High Point comeback with a leadoff double. Anthony Bell then turned on a full-count fast-ball and tripled to center field to plate Stang and cut Gardner-Webb's lead to 3-2. Nick Thompson then laced a single to right to drive in Bell, and the score was tied 3-3 before Siak could recover and end the inning with a strikeout. High Point benefited from some tough breaks for the home squad to take its lead in the top of the eighth, as Rey Rojas led off with a high chopper that just cleared the Gardner-Webb third baseman and reached second after beating the Bulldog outfielder's throw to second base. A wild pitch by GWU reliever Zach Ward didn't get far away from catcher Jim Glueckert during the next at bat, but Rojas took off for third base - and scored when Glueckert's attempt to throw him out sailed into left field, giving High Point its second unearned run of the day and a lead it would not give up. Gardner-Webb put a pair of runners on board in the bottom of the eighth with no outs, but High Point reliever Mark Shorey got a fly ball for the first out and coaxed McCarson into a 6-4-3 double play to end the inning - and the Bulldogs would not get a runner past first base in the ninth to fall victim to HPU's rally.

Leake earned his first win of the year and scattered eight hits in 7.0 innings of work. Shorey picked up his second save with two scoreless innings of relief.

Ward (0-2) was the hard luck loser despite striking out three with no walks or earned runs in two innings of relief. Siak worked seven innings and allowed two earned runs on six hits with four strikeouts.

Ramirez (2-for-4, run) and Thompson (2-for-3, RBI) led High Point's seven-hit attack at the plate, while Gardner-Webb's eight-hit effort was paced by Testa (2-for-4, run, RBI) and Styers (2-for-4, RBI). HPU visits Winthrop this weekend for a three-game Big South Conference series beginning Friday at 6:00 pm.

RADFORD 7, DAVIDSON 4

The visiting Radford Highlanders took advantage of a sloppy Davidson defense that committed five errors to defeat the Wildcats on Wednesday afternoon, 7-4. Of the seven runs for Radford (8-12), only one was earned. The win is the fifth straight for RU. It is the longest winning streak of the season for the Highlanders, who improve to 8-12 overall. Davidson falls to 8-12.

A throwing error in the first put a runner on third with one out, and Kellen Wohlford delivered a fly ball to center just deep enough to score Stuart Ritchie for a 1-0 Radford lead.

In the bottom half, Davidson countered with junior Michael Muniz's two-out, two-run home run to right.

The score remained 2-1 until the fifth when the Highlanders tied the score on Ritchie's RBI single up the middle. Radford proceeded to load the bases with two outs on a pair of walks, but Wildcat starting pitcher Justin Hartanov got a foul pop behind the plate to end the inning.

Davidson retook the lead in its half of the fifth. After freshman Gregory Zage led off with a single to left-center, Highlander hurler Mark Fleisher got the next two batters on pop ups. But junior Andrew Musashe hit a ball down the third-base line that hit the outside the bag and into the corner. Zage came around to score for a 3-2 Wildcat lead.

The wheels started to fall off in the seventh for Davidson. Dean Altavilla started the inning by reaching on an error and advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt. After Alan Ashworth laced a hit to right to send Altavilla to third, reliever Matt Meade threw a pitch in the dirt that allowed only Ashworth to advance a base. Wohlford then lined a ball to left on which Musashe made a nifty sliding catch for the second out. But Shaun House hit a seeing-eye grounder up the middle to score both runners and give Radford the lead. Matt Mantione then hit a grounder down the line, but the throw from third was a bit wide allowing House to score all the way from first.

Once again, Davidson answered by scoring another run in the bottom half. Sophomore Taylor Shoop ripped a two-out double to right-center off reliever Casey Hodges to score sophomore Jay Heafner from first. Cory Koliscak came in and preserved the Highlander lead by inducing a comebacker.

Radford added an unearned run in both the eighth and ninth innings, but Davidson did not go quietly. With one out in the bottom of the ninth, the 'Cats got the tying run to the plate with one out, only to have Highlander closer Bret Lieberman get swinging third strikes on the next two hitters to strike out the side and earn his third save of the season.

Fleisher (2-1) got the victory by throwing six innings and allowing three runs on seven hits without walking a batter. He also struck out five Wildcats.

Meade (0-3) was the tough-luck loser, allowing three unearned runs in two innings of work. Hartanov pitched well in just his second career start, tossing five innings of two-hit ball, yielding two runs, one earned, while walking five and striking out five.

Ritchie was the lone Highlander with two hits on the afternoon, as was sophomore Alex Entrekin for the Wildcats. Heafner reached base three times for Davidson on a single and a pair of walks.

Radford will try to extend its winning streak this weekend with a Big South series against UNC Asheville at home. First pitch for Friday's game will be at 3:00 p.m.

LIBERTY 8, OLD DOMINION 4

The Flames of Liberty University used 11 hits led by Phillip Laurent and Jeff Brown to defeat the Old Dominion University Monarchs, 8-4 Wednesday Night at the Bud Metheny Baseball Complex. ODU is now 10-11, Liberty is 11-10.

Brown doubled home a run in the first and one in Liberty's five-run fifth. Laurent singled both Jeremiah Boles and Ryan Engelhardt. Laurent finished the evening with three hits and three runs scored. In the third inning, Justin Gregula (Washington, PA.) scored on a throwing error, while in the fourth freshman catcher Tyler Belcher (Bristol, VA.) singled home Steven Harris (Va. Beach, VA.). The sports caster, said he didn't think St. Joseph's deserved a No. 1 seed in the tournament because of a supposedly weaker schedule than other teams. Like a dope I took Packer's advice and had St. Joe's losing to Texas Tech in the second round. St. Joseph's coach Phil Martelli did not take Packer's comments as lightly as I did, saying that his team would like to take on its doubters on the court.

A brash statement from Phil Martelli, but do you expect anything less from a coach and a team from Philadelphia, the home of the world's most famous underdog, Rocky?

It was Rocky who said "It really don't matter if I lose this fight. It really don't matter if this guy opens my head, either. 'Cause all I wanna do is go the distance. Nobody's ever gone the distance."

Even though their tournament run ended with Oak State, St. Joseph's went down to the last second in the game with the ball in their hands and they wouldn't have had it any other way.

Ashley D.- Why do so many sports have bouncing balls?

Ah...that's just too easy. Enjoy the two cents

Megan W.- If love lives were NCAA tournament teams, which team would you be and why?

I would like to say Duke because I always take home the championship, but it's more like Stanford cause I am overrated and I take my shots with seconds left...understand what that means? Neither do I...here is two cents. Go talk to Lollita.

Yvonne S.- Why is golf allowed to be broadcast as a sport? It's so boring to watch on TV.

Well, they put golf tournaments on television because they take up four days and networks like NBC and CBS can think of ways for people to eat more parts of cows or find new ways to trick someone into marrying someone for a million dollars.

Track and Field: Third time another charm

By David Wetzel

sports editor

Two down, one to go. This is the philosophy for coach Alan Connie's quest for the track and field Triple Crown.

The women won the Big South Conference cross country trophy in the fall and the indoor championships in the winter which just leaves the spring outdoor track and field.

If the Coastal Carolina Invitational was a preview, things are looking positive.

The team took first place finishes in the 3,000-meter steeplechase (Daneja Grandovec), the pole vault (Marylin Testa), the long jump and triple jump (Chasity Johnson), the shot put (Brittany Reid) and discus and hammer throw (Amber Campbell).

The men also took a few first place finishes. They claimed the 800-meter run (Jacob Simatwa), 1,500 (Nelson Oliveria), 400 hurdles (Kendal White), triple jump (Marcus Johnson) and javelin throw (Thomas Jordan).

Thomas, a freshman, was named BSC outdoor track and field athlete of the week with winning the javelin, his second straight first place finish in the event.

The Lady Chanticleers have already earned four regional qualifications and continues to add them.

Anne Marie Moutsinga's 16:44.28 finish at the Raleigh Relays made her the newest qualifier.

Campbell shattered a Big South record with her 12.08 meter hammer throw to qualify while Testa broke a school record in the pole vault with a 3.8-meter performance to get there.

Grandovec's 10:55.54 in the steeplechase garnered her selection.

Other top finishers at the CCU meet were Johnson's fifth place finish in the 100, Jessica Watson's (2:17.52) second place finish in the 800 and third in the high jump (1.62 meters), Lital Azulay's second and Danielle Hagler's fifth place finishes in the 1,500, Linsey Kozlowski's (11:14.06) second place in the 3,000 steeplechase, Margo Sanders (3.05 meters) in the fourth place finish in the pole vault and Testa's second place in the javelin throw (34.55 meters).

This just rounds out the women's top five finishers.

On the men's side several made the top five as well. Brandon Anderson's fifth place finish (11.15) in the 100, Kenny Jesenski's second place (1:55.2) in the 800, Terah Kipchiris' second place (3:56.24) and Doug Currie's third place (3:57.8) finish in the 1,500 and Paul Scheuer's second place (54.59) finish in the 400 hurdles.

It's a good start, but the season is young. The teams travel to Durham, N.C. tomorrow for their next competition at the Duke Invitational.

Monarchs added a run in the sixth as Brandon Carter came home when Liberty missed a pick-off attempt at first on Harris. Joe Moore (Woodbridge, VA.) scored ODU's final run in the ninth on a throwing error.

Michael Schaeffer picked up the win for the Flames, his second of the season. Liberty travels to Charleston Southern on March 26 for a Big South series, while the Monarchs host Towson in a three-game CAA series beginning Friday night at 7 p.m.

KENT STATE 3, COASTAL CAROLINA 2

The Coastal Carolina University baseball team (16-5) gave up three runs in the third inning to Kent State University (7-12) and the Golden Flashes made those runs hold up as the Chants had only four hits in a 3-2 loss March 24 at Charles Watson Stadium at Vrooman Field in Conway, S.C. The Golden Flashes scored three in the third, two on a single off the bat of Chad Kinyon, scoring Todd Balduf and Emmanuel Burriss. With Kinyon on first and Andrew Davis on third, Kent State tried a double steal. Davis scored and Kinyon moved back to first after a failed attempt at a rundown. That would be all of the offense for the Golden Flashes as Coastal limited them to six hits and no runs the rest of the way.

In the bottom of the third, the Chants got one run on an RBI single by sophomore Mike Costanzo (Springfield, Pa./Archbishop Carroll), scoring senior Ryan McGraw (Saginaw, Mich./Nouvel Catholic Central). The Chants came back in the fourth with a run. Junior Jason Krohn (Gresham, Ore./Lower Columbia College) walked, stole second and went to third on a throwing error by the catcher. Senior Chad Oxendine (Rowland, N.C./Avalon Academy) brought him in with a sacrifice fly to right. Coastal had runners on first and second in the sixth with two outs, but reliever Shane Curry got junior Brett Grandstand (Newcastle, Wash./Liberty) to strike out to end the threat. In the ninth, McGraw and sophomore Michael DeJesus (Manapalan, N.J./Manapalan) both walked, but Costanzo struck out to end the game. Freshman Andy DeLaGarza (Ossian, Ind./Norwell) took the loss for Coastal. He went 2.2 innings, striking out two and giving up three hits, three runs and three walks. The bullpen of junior Mike Andreas (Hanover, Pa./Georgia Tech), sophomore Zach Baldwin (Barboursville, W.V.a/Cabell Midland), junior Jake Hurry (East Moline, Ill./Alleman) and Costanzo did not allow and run while striking out four.

Jason Seelman earned the win in relief for Kent State, striking out one in 1.2 innings. Evan Smith was the KSU starter, striking out four in four innings. Phil Bojc pitched a hitless ninth for his second save. DeJesus had two of Coastal's four hits. Kinyon was 2-of-4 for Kent State, while Balduf and Kurt Eichorn also had two hits.

Coastal opens up a big three-game series with Big South Conference foe Birmingham-Southern College Friday, March 26, at 6 p.m., in Conway, S.C.

THE CITADEL 5, WINTHROP 4

The Citadel scored three in the third and two in the sixth and held off a late Winthrop rally to take their sixth straight win, a 5-4 victory over the Eagles. The Bulldogs improved to 13-8 with the win and have won nine out of their last 11 games. Winthrop fell to 11-10 with the loss.

The Bulldogs got on the board first with a bases clearing double by Chris Ard in the third to take a 3-0 lead.

The Citadel added two in the sixth to push their lead to 5-0. Daniel Carte's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the sixth drove in Matt Repec and cut the Bulldogs' lead to 5-1.

The Eagles added three more in the seventh to cut into the Bulldogs' lead. With the bases loaded, Brian Haney singled to drive in Kyle Roberson and cut The Citadel's lead to 5-2. Jacob Dempsey cut the lead to 5-3 with an RBI groundout that drove in Bennett Stapf.

With two outs, David Scoggin singled in Chris Leroux while Haney was gunned down at the plate to end the inning with the Bulldogs holding a 5-4 lead.

The Citadel held Winthrop hitless over the final two innings to take the one-run victory.

Freshman left-hander Jamie Maxwell (1-0) shut out the Eagles over the first five innings to take his first win in his first career start. He struck out three and walked two.

Shannon Sprouse, the fourth Bulldog pitcher of the game, mowed down the Eagles in the ninth to earn his third save of the season.

Jeff Reeves (1-2) gave up five runs (four earned) over five and one-third innings to take the loss for the Eagles. He struck out a season-high eight batters and walked just two.

Haney, Repec, and Scoggin had two hits a piece for the Eagles, while Haney, Dempsey, Scoggin and Carte drove in a run each.

The Eagles begin Big South Conference play Friday at 6 p.m. when they host High Point in the first game of a three game series at The Winthrop Ballpark. A fireworks show will immediately follow Friday night's game.

Teal defeats White, Scott Crouch out again

By Danny Nolan
staff writer

Coastal Carolina played its second spring Teal vs. White football game ever, and defense was the name of the game as the Teal defeated the White 7-0.

Head coach David Bennett is still happy when he looks at the final statistics from Coastal Carolina's spring game.

"We are all one team, but on the flip side I am certainly proud of our defense," said Bennett.

Teal drove down the field in the first quarter of the game but gave the ball up after kicker Aaron Van Poole missed wide right, keeping the score even with the White. Two drives later White's kicker Rob Williams had a 26 yard attempt blocked and the score remained tied into the half.

In the second half White quarterback Tyler Thigpen fumbled the snap, and cornerback Rashiek Buchanan recovered the ball and returned it for the only score of the game.

Bennett said, "Well you know they are going to compete, but we look for guys who can make plays and handle the pressure of playing college football." And play makers he has. Two wide outs, Chris McDonald and Rodney Burgess, made 30 yard catches, and running backs Carl Robinson and Patrick Hall both rushed for 50 yards.

One player who wasn't in the game but on the sidelines on Sunday's Teal and White football game was Scott Crouch, who has injured his shoulder again and finds himself looking at another come back. Although taking on adversities is something Crouch has become accustomed to, it is the lessons he has learned and the struggles he has gone through that make him prime to handle this come back.

"I plan to be ready next season," said Crouch. "I came here for a reason."

Coming out of high school Scott

South Carolina that he would decide to play his college football. It was also where he first started to have shoulder problems.

"Three weeks into practice my shoulder started to hurt, then it just locked up on me," said Crouch.

Crouch received surgery from one of the best doctors in the United States: the same doctor that worked on Chicago

Crouch was an All-State football selection his final two years, including being named the Florida Athletic Coaches' Association Class 2A Player of the Year in his senior season. After high school

Scott went to the University of Alabama where he was red shirted and was set on being one of the quarterbacks of the future for the Crimson Tide. That was until the head coach who recruited him was fired and his scholarship was not honored by the new coach.

"I was talking to University of Cal Berkeley, Mississippi State and Arizona State," said Crouch.

But it was because of Lou Holt's depth chart at Cubs ace Kerry Woods' shoulder.

"I knew in my heart that USC wasn't the place for me," said Crouch. "I prayed to God on which I should do, and it was Coach Bennett's faith that really brought me here."

While at Coastal Scott heard some more bad news. The NCAA told him he was not eligible to play in the Chants' inaugural season due to a transfer rule, and that he was going to have to sit out a year for the second time in his college career.

"All I wanted to do is play," said Crouch.

Scott spent the fall training and working out to get ready for the spring, but it was his shoulder that would once again put his career on hold.

"After everything it's just been faith that has kept me going," said Crouch. "I am rehabbing everyday and I plan to be ready next season."

Coach Bennett added, "Will he compete for the starting job next year? I don't know. It depends on how his shoulder heals, but he is going to make a fine young coach and he already is a fine young man."

The Chanticleer baseball team making a hit at home

By Aaron Milz
staff writer

The Coastal Carolina baseball team has been nearly unbeatable in the Grand Strand area, led by Brett Grandstrand.

The Chanticleer's (17-7, 1-2 Big South Conference) have played only two of these games away from the Myrtle Beach area, and seem to be very comfortable at home. Much of this comfort and confidence has rested on the bat of junior shortstop Brett Grandstrand.

Grandstrand leads the team in batting average, hits and doubles. He has helped lead the team to many key victories, including the conference opener against Birmingham Southern, in which he went four for five, and drove in one of the teams three runs. They won 3-2, despite the fact that Birmingham Southern was ranked 30th in the nation at game time. Unfortunately, The Chants were not able to continue the winning against Birmingham Southern and lost to them on both Saturday and Sunday of last weekend. The final scores of the games were 8-3 on Saturday and 5-3 on Sunday.

Grandstrand and the Chanticleers have amassed 164 runs in their 22 games, compared to their opponents' 121. This has resulted in a .290 team batting average, much higher than opponents' .255.

Batting has not been the only high point in the Chanticleers' play. Their pitching staff has managed to maintain a 4.70 average earned run average, compared to opponents' 5.80.

These statistics were amassed almost entirely in pre-conference play, preparing the team for the conference play that began last week. The Chanticleers have played in many tournaments against many different teams, one of the strongest being preseason #11 Clemson, in which they suffered one of their seven losses, losing 9-4.

Brett Grandstrand is currently leading the Chanticleer baseball team in batting average, hits and doubles. The team is 17-7, 1-2 in the Big South Conference. Photo courtesy of
